Preparing for New and Anticipated Legislation, Regulations and Amendments Affecting the Retaliation and Discrimination Landscape

National Forum on Defending and Managing High Exposure Claims of Retaliation and Discrimination | New York City

Mike Reilly will present at a National Forum on Defending and Managing High Exposure Claims of Retaliation and Discrimination. Reilly will present “Preparing for New and Anticipated Legislation, Regulations and Amendments Affecting the Retaliation and Discrimination Landscape” on July 27 at 11:10 a.m. at the Helmsley Park Lane Hotel in New York, N.Y. In the presentation, he will discuss recent changes within the Administration, Congress, and federal and state agencies. The presentation will also cover why employers and their counsel need to prepare for major changes regarding how the employment relationship is regulated, as well as industry risk and litigation profile. He will address the key issues currently in play, such as new laws, amendments to old laws, legislative intent behind these new statutes and pending bills/initiatives.
